TURBULENCE

Water and Climate Change

Textile Art Community

Turbulence is a creative response to global climate change and environmental sustainability. Banyule-based artists from the Textile Art Community, sound artist Alice Bennett and environmental artist Felicity Gordon have collaborated to create an immersive art installation using salvaged and recycled materials. The exhibition's theme is water, focusing on Banyule's waterways and natural environmental processes of decay, renewal and regrowth. In an unsettling time of increased concern about our natural environment, art can be a catalyst for positive engagement and change as we navigate the unknown.

This exhibition is supported by the Banyule Environment Advisory Committee and will be accompanied by a public program of events, talks and workshops. Check the website for details.
